"TILL THE FROST"

The associate editor received this week a book of poems written by Truda McCoy from up (actually south of us) Pikeville way. Truda—tall, raven-haired and attractive—one of those modest poets who thinks her ability is overrated, but her poetry speaks for itself.

"I had the poems collected in a brochure," she says, "because the school kids bothered me every year for copies of them and I just couldn't type poems for two hours every night to hand them." Truda has had more than a hundred poems published in the last two years. And dozens more have been accepted for publication this year. Those who know her best say she is truly a down-to-earth person but with as poetic a heart that ever beat a beat. Her booklet contains twenty-four poems, including the title poem, "TILL THE FROST." Most of the poems have been published in poetry magazines, including Different, Poets Reed, Kalliedograph, Literary Amateur, New Athenaeum, and Wild Fire. The poem "THE JONQUILS" was a prize winning poem in the Poets Reed. LONELY HILL won a $50 prize. NOCTURNAL VISION and MORNING are due to come out any time in the anthology SINGING PENS. DROUTH NOW IN FOURTH MONTH

Since October 1 total rainfall recorded at West Liberty by John Turner, local weather observer, has been only 1/4 of an inch.

The drouth, which set in here in August, is now in its fourth month. During that time the total rainfall here has been 6.02 inches which is less than half the average of 14.5 inches for the period.

Only two showers were recorded here since October 1—a 15-hundredths of an inch on Oct. 28 and 10-hundredths of an inch on the 28th.

Nearly all streams, except the larger ones, have gone since dried up, and the larger ones have water only in the deeper holes. Mr. Turner, however, reports there is no shortage of water supply threatening West Liberty. The Twenty-Two Hollow pool above town is ample with the aid of a small dam here to provide water for a considerable time yet, he said.

Mr. and Mrs. Tommie Ruth were in Pikeville Monday.

BERNARD P. LACY IS SUICIDE VICTIM

Bernard Paul Lacy, 40, building contractor of Wheelersburg, Ohio, died of a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning at the home of his mother, Mrs. Verna Lacy in West Liberty.

Coroner W. H. Wells reported that Lacy died almost instantly on the back porch of the Lacy home here of a 22 bullet wound fired from a rifle found near his body. The bullet entered under the chin and came out on the top of his head.

A letter addressed to his family telling them of his insurance, was found in one of his pockets. Coroner Wells said.

Lacy had been suffering from stomach ulcers, and had worried about his health, it was learned. Lacy, his wife and three children had come to West Liberty the previous evening to visit his mother.

He was born in West Liberty May 24, 1913, a son of Mrs. Verna Williams Lacy and the late James Curtis Lacy, and had lived here most of his life. Surviving are his mother, his wife, Mrs. Polly Nickell Lacy, and three children, Alice Sue, Larry Joe and Joyce Ann. A brother, Guy Lacy, was burned to death about 12 years ago when fire partly consumed the home here. A son, Robert Dale, about 3, died suddenly about two years ago of an asthma condition.

FOREST FIRES HIT 3 AREAS IN THIS COUNTY

Firefighters Save
Barns At Malone;
2,000 Acres Burn

Forest fires burned over more than two thousand acres and seriously threatened a number of buildings in Morgan county the past week.

Fire which started near Malone last week burned over forests on the farms of Walter Evans, Ray Haney, Roger Lykins, Aaron Lykins, Merrill McGuire, Denzil Deborde and Charley Lykins. Much timber was destroyed and the large tobacco barn of Aaron Lykins was threatened. Men from the state highway crew, fire wardens and volunteer fighters succeeded in keeping the fire away from the Lykins barn by digging rings and fighting against the fire.

A barn belonging to Merrill McGuire on the Lykins branch near Malone was threatened for some time, as were a number of other buildings. The fire extended over the head of the streams on to Jones Creek.

Several acres were burned over near Salem on the branch where the new highway has been completed over to the Squire Nickell school.

Ollie Fyffe said that three or four hundred acres were burned over on Coffee Creek last week then swept on into Magoffin. A part of his and adjoining farms were burned over and the fire was very destructive. Sometimes the flames reached a hundred feet, burning above the tops of trees, he said.

QUAIL, GROUSE ARE PLENTIFUL

Quail and grouse hunters are hopeful of a better than average season in Morgan when the hunting season opens Friday, Nov. 20. The quail population is described by most farmers and hunters as even larger than last season, which was one of the best years for a long time.

Personnel of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources have just completed a survey in this area, and farmers reported there is a "big increase" of quail. One wildlife official said the drouth apparently has not hurt quail much and that the coveys are larger than usual and the birds healthier.

Grouse too are somewhat plentiful in Morgan where conservation officers say they are under-hunted. "Grouse are so difficult to hunt that we don't have to worry about over-hunting them," one official said.

Rabbits, however, are no more plentiful than formerly, wildlife officials say.

Rex Theatre Now Has New Panoramic Screen

The Rex Theatre here has completed the installation of a new curved screen known as the panoramic screen, which adds greatly to the pictures.

The new wide-vision screen not only makes ordinary pictures appear more realistic but also can be used for the showing of Warner-Scope and Cinema-Scope pictures and also three-dimensional pictures. It was first used at last Sunday's show.

The curved shape of the screen is important in giving a panoramic and wide view effect in theatres.

WESTERN FIRM GETS CONTRACT FOR CO-OP LINES

Work on 3-County
Phone System To Be Started Soon

The Stake Construction Company of Argyle, Minnesota, was awarded contract for the construction of 354 miles of telephone lines in Morgan, Elliott and Wolfe counties by the Mountain Rural Telephone Cooperative here Tuesday.

The Minnesota firm was low bidder on the several units of line, and engineers estimate the total cost will run $454,000. Other bidders were L. O. Brayton of Dyersburg, Tenn. and the Irby Construction Company of Jackson, Miss.

W. D. Stake, president of the firm who was here to submit his bid, said after he had been awarded the contract he would be ready to commence work as soon as the contract is approved in Washington by REA.

The contract stipulates that construction must be completed in 150 working days. Included are approximately 40 miles of cable for the five exchanges and approximately 314 miles of open lines in the three counties.

The co-op has been granted loans totaling $743,000 by REA to build a modern dial system in Morgan, Elliott and Wolfe counties. Headquarters of the co-op is in West Liberty. More than 1300 patron-members already have signed applications for phones in the three counties.

Woodrow W. Barber, manager, said REA approval of the contract should be received in ten days.

Meanwhile, the buildings to house substation exchanges at Sandy Hook, Campton, Ezol and Hazel Green already have been constructed, and the inside dial and exchange equipment for the four sub-stations and for the central office in West Liberty is being built by Stromberg-Carlson Company of New York, and is to be shipped here for installing in February or March.

Also, the central office building and exchange in West Liberty, which the co-op purchased from the former West Liberty telephone company, is being remodeled and enlarged. The building, on Main street, is being raised three feet in order that a full-size basement can be built that will contain a two-vehicle garage and storage and equipment rooms. The upstairs office will contain a 11x25-foot lobby, manager's office and the central exchange.

The Stake company has specialized in building REA co-op systems in rural areas, most of them in the west and in the Rocky Mountain region.

Mr. Stake, after arriving here and viewing the terrain, which he described as considerably less mountainous than he had expected, reduced his first bid $10,000.

The Road Back Home To Morgan---And Yocum

By Alma Robison Higbee
It was a blue and gold day, the day I took the road back home. It was a long road, one that ran back thirty years, into the past, for like Esau of old, one day, when I saw a far, strange vision, I sold my birthright . . . for words.

As the road unwound into the hill country, my mind went back to the old home place at Yocum, to the little one room school house atop the hill, where I received my meager store of knowledge, and I recalled again the deep craving for words, that sent me out, eager, determined, to find and drink at the fountain of learning that I had missed. This craving, this deep need, drove me out. Homesickness for the hills brought me back.

It took eleven years to find all of the words I wanted. It took much longer than that, to make friends with words, so that they would follow me as good sheep follow the shepherd. The years were long but they were full, years, and fruitful in all of the things that make life rich and rewarding. Not in money, but in beauty, in sunsets and dawn, in birds and blossoms and friendships and music and gentle living. These were the things I learned and loved, when I lived at Yocum. The worthwhile things that clothe the heart in deep contentment.

It was good to go back in autumn, when the ruby sumac slopes were shot through with sunlight, when the fingers of frost had garbed the hickory trees in gold-leaf, when persimmons on the bough turned red-gold cheeks to the sun and wild grapes hung their rich purple among the curling vines. This was and is part of the kinship I feel with the hill country, for my heart owns pattern of leaf and feel of hill winds and scent of pine and it will never let go these lovely and precious things.

As we left the lowland country, the softly rolling hills behind and climbed steadily along the twisting mountain trail, I found a dear familiarity in the way tall birch trees leaned above the little streams, and in the bright cloisonne of autumn, I could catch the dark blotched red of sourwood, the tarnished rust of oak, the gold tinged scarlet of sugar maple, and running through it all, like a thread of emerald, the star-tipped green of pines that leaned upon the sky.

There was the changing landscape, making a patchwork of meadows, with three cornered patches of tobacco base, the little houses, the gardens, the shocks of corn against the sun-brown hills. There were boys and dogs, and cows standing under dappled shades, and always, the little foot paths running along the hills to lose themselves in the woodlands.

Nothing was the same, and yet nothing had really changed. The hills were lovelier than I remembered, the roads just as steep as they used to be. True they are surfaced, so that they are smooth, but as we near home, familiar (Continued on page 8)

Why more than a million owners this year have chosen the "Worth More" FORD!

They have discovered first hand what the surveys show... Ford, with all its fine-car features, is worth more when you buy it, and worth more when you sell it!

OVER A MILLION OWNERS can't be wrong! Ford is the one fine car in the low-price field. It gives you the "GO," the style, the comfort, and "build" of cars that sell for far more. And, it's only natural that Ford keeps its value better, in resale, than any other car on the American Road. Check the features below for some of the "Worth More" reasons for the swing to Ford.

Lowest-priced V-8 in America. And the only V-8 in the low-price field. Ford's high-compression V-8 power plant delivers its "Go" on regular gas!

Most Modern Six of all is Ford's high-compression, low-friction Mileage Maker. With Overdrive, it was the winner in 1953 Mobilgas Economy Run.

Smoother Ride, with front end road shock reduced up to 80%, is another Ford big-car feature...and you get it without gas-eating extra weight.

Fine-Car Build means using steel of the same quality and thickness as in costliest cars. Ford is the most completely insulated car in its field.

Fordomatic Drive is the only "automatic" in its field with the "Go" of an automatic intermediate gear plus the smoothness of a torque converter.

Finest Power Steering—that's Ford Master-Guide. Does up to 75% of the steering work yet retains normal steering "feel" on the straightaways.

Unity of God's People
AN EXAMPLE FOR GOOD
The Prophet said, "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity."

So complete and perfect is the Bible standard of divine relationship of unity among all the saved that they are declared to constitute one body in Christ. For by one spirit are we baptized into one body whether we are Jew, Gentile, whether we are bond or free.

There is perfect harmony in the normal body and all the members have their particular office, so it is with the body of Christ.

All God's people should work together, pray together and love one another so that they who are on the outside should see and know that we are His disciples.

MISS COX TO WASHINGTON

The following is from the Oct. 21 Huntington Advertiser and will be of interest to the many friends of the Coxes here—Miss Anne Bronson Cox and her mother, Mrs. Henry Clay Cox of Fifth Avenue, will leave Saturday for Washington, D. C., where Anne will remain for the winter and will study voice under Thelma George. Anne is preparing for a New York audition which will take place later in the year. She studied music in Indiana and also in Boston, Mass. Two years ago she made her debut here with the Deputante Club and she is a popular member of the younger set. Her mother, formerly Anna Marie Bronson, and her father, Col. Henry Clay Cox are prominent Huntingdonians. Anne is a beautiful young girl and she has a great future ahead of her. She has been asked to have several auditions in New York.

Much tobacco in Todd county was cut half-ripe and will be of poor quality and low yield, reports Stuart Brabant, University of Kentucky county agent.

MRS. HIGBEE

(Continued from page 1) things begin to emerge, a bridge across a stream, a small store and four or five buildings that comprise a town, a house where I visited as a child. It is clear and remembered, as it stands like a painting by Grandma Moses. This is home.

And here is the town that I have held in my heart through the years, because it is a part of home. Here are the faces of people I knew thirty years ago, faces a little strange to me, after so long a time, but the voice of a friend speaks to me and eyes that I remember smile at me, and a name comes to mind. A warm, friendly handclasp brings me back through the years and I'm really home. I am back among my own. You are not as big as it used to be, but it is doubly dear. Down there, between the hills, are the roads I walked as a child, there are the little paths around the hill, there is the dell where the windflowers used to blow, white as the wings of April. The old home place has changed. The hills have moved in, the valley is smaller, but inside the house there is the old stack chimney with the "jamb" rock scored with a stone hatchet. I sat on a block of wood as a child and watched uncle "Rube" Cassidy score that rock. I stood by and watched him build that house, seeing the pine shavings curl, thin and fragrant from beneath his plane. There is the little creek I have crossed so many times, the old barn still standing, the main part of it built out of logs heven and notched by great grandfather Gardner H. Lewis, or Grandpap Garn, as he was called.

On a hill above the old place, in a tangle of running briars and wild grass, Grandpap Garn still sleeps. There lie four generations of my family, my grandfather and grandmother Robison and my father. A small sister rests there, too. On this place, four generations ago, a man built his cabin and planted his orchard. He split rails to enclose his land and dug his well, after he had "witched" the water place with a forked peach tree bough.

Is it any wonder that this is the place I have loved so dearly, and which I have so yearned? This is as much a part of me as my breath, and even across time and space, it drew me back. Changes have come to the hills but they are good changes. My son tells me that each morning he carries fifty or sixty young people to the high school and the grade school on the bus and takes them home in time to help with the chores. Good roads have made this possible, good roads and the vision of a great and wonderful people.

Though the memory of the little one room school is dear to me, and I still recall the scent of chalk and dinner pails and dust in the school yard with deep nostalgia, I am thankful that the boys and girls of today have many of the advantages that I missed.

Because friends were thoughtful, I was privileged to visit a one room school, and to go and see the place where my mother was born and reared, up on Straight Creek. I got a drink at the old well dug by my grandfather, Jesse LeMaster, and saw the little stream where mother used to wash her face and hands on cold mornings. Up and down the creek, I met my "kinfolk," and loved them every one. It was wonderful to find that I was related to practically everyone I met.

Faced with stern reality, and with the knowledge that I have a desk that would soon be piled high with accumulated work, I had to turn back, reluctantly, to the place I have missed home, if I will. I came away with the certainty that the sun shines just a little brighter in Morgan than anywhere else on earth. The birds sing sweeter there, the wind that whispers in the pine trees makes a richer melody. The fragrance of a hill autumn is the rarest perfume.

"Without vision, the people perish." I have seen the vision that has brought modern conveniences to the hill country, good roads, better school facilities, electricity, but these things have not detracted one iota from the beauty of the hills, from the warmth and understanding of the people, for in the veins of these people flow the blood of pioneers, the strong, the courageous. These are my hills. These are my people. The day must come, if I will find the road back once more, to stay.

Dems Win 79 House Seats

In the 1952 legislature there 73 Democrats in the House and 27 Republicans in the Senate. There were 28 Democrats and 10 Republicans.

EMERGENCY LOANS FOR STOCK READY

More than $11,689,000 in special livestock loans has been loaned to approximately 1,190 farmers and ranchers throughout the United States and nearly 600 other applications are being considered, William P. Caskey, Farmers Home Administration county supervisor for Morgan and Magoffin counties, reported this week.

The special livestock loan program authorized last July, help established producers of cattle, sheep, and goats to maintain their herds, Mr. Caskey said. The producers who can borrow are those with good past records of livestock production but who are temporarily unable to get adequate credit from commercial banks, cooperative lending agencies, or other responsible sources to enable them to go ahead with normal livestock operations. They must have reasonable prospects of success with the help of a loan. Commercial feed lot operators are not included.

Applications can be made at the county Farmers Home Administration office at West Liberty. Committees authorized by Secretary of Agriculture Benson approve the loans.

A borrower may use his loan funds for usual expenses of carrying on a livestock operation, including restocking his herd up to the number he held before he had to reduce his herd.

The 5 percent loans may be amortized over a 3-year period and secured by the best lien possible on the borrower's property and his personal obligation to repay the borrowed money. Other creditors, although not asked to subordinate their claims, are expected to agree to stand by so farmers can have a fair chance to work out of his difficulties.

Agreements are made to let the farmer apply a reasonable part of his livestock income to repaying the special livestock loan.

Corn was so dry in Lyon county that ears fell off when the mechanical picker hit the stalks; farmers turned in stock to pick up the corn.

Shortage of water and grass forced some farmers in Bell to sell cattle one to two months earlier than they had planned.
